

BOOT CAMP

This three-day workshop trains economics teachers in course-specific content and is designed for teachers with little or no economics experience.

Are you new to the role of teaching high school economics? Do you have little formal training in the discipline? Are you overwhelmed by vocabulary, graphs and charts? If you answered yes, Economics Boot Camp is for you. Workshop sessions will be led by economic education specialists with experience in the high school classroom. The content will correlate directly with the TEKS for Economics with Emphasis on the Free Enterprise System and Its Benefits, the Louisiana GLEs and the New Mexico Content Standards. Each session will include suggestions for effective classroom strategies.

Praise from Past Participants

“This camp was absolutely fantastic! The sessions were relevant and provided me with materials and confidence for the classroom. ... Because of this camp, I am very excited about economics in general and hope to be able to convey my enthusiasm to my students. This was a most enriching and rewarding experience. Thank you, thank you, thank you very much.”

“This is one of the best workshops I’ve ever been to. ... Because I am relatively new to teaching economics, I find the information given invaluable. I have recommended this workshop to several colleagues. By far the most useful in-service I’ve been to in 10 years of teaching.”
