Few will deny that the world as we know it is evolving at an unprecedented rate. That statement is especially true for the electronic payments arena. Technological advances, dynamic changes in consumer needs and the escalating demand for payments systems that are safe and reliable all translate into greater utilization of the ACH network. Staying ahead of the changes and anticipating the opportunities that arise are challenging.

We hope you will take advantage of this unique opportunity to hear from respected industry leaders, gain insight into the new direction of the ACH network and share information with your peers.
