

Roberto A. Coronado

Senior Vice President and Senior Economist

Federal Reserve
Bank of Dallas

Brief bio for introductions

Roberto Coronado serves as senior vice president for the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas, responsible for community engagement and development. His team builds deep, strategic partnerships with community and business leaders across Texas, southern New Mexico and northern Louisiana to help shape the Dallas Fed's understanding of the economy and to advance economic inclusion.

As a senior economist and regional head of the El Paso branch, Coronado provides regional input into the Dallas Fed's monetary policy process. Additionally, he leads the Dallas Fed's work to extend its relationships with Mexico and deepen its expertise on the U.S.–Mexico economy.

Coronado serves as director for the Texas Lyceum and board member for the National Association for Business Economics, Texas 2036 and the El Paso Collaborative for Academic Excellence.

He earned his doctorate in economics from the University of Houston and his bachelor's and master's degrees in economics from University of Texas at El Paso.
