Are you facing foreclosure?

The Texas Foreclosure Prevention Task Force Can Help

The Task Force has established and supports the following network of HUD-approved housing counseling agencies across the State of Texas. We recommend homeowners in need of foreclosure prevention and intervention counseling assistance utilize a federally regulated organization. These local non-profit organizations offer FREE foreclosure counseling in addition to other housing related services.

Furthermore, the Task Force endorses all HUD-approved housing counseling providers in Texas. In some areas of the State you may also find homeowner outreach events – look for events that offer HUD-approved housing counseling assistance. Again, these services are provided free of charge.

Exciting opportunity to partner with local public media...

TFPTF members in the Dallas-Fort Worth and Houston markets may soon be invited to partner with their local public television stations in an exciting new initiative.

The program will replicate the Facing the Mortgage Crisis collaboration in St. Louis led by KETC/Channel 9. The program was so successful in increasing awareness of local resources that the Corporation for Public Broadcasting has issued a challenge to PBS stations to expand the model to the twenty markets that are most impacted by the foreclosure crisis according to information received from the U.S. Treasury Department.

From page 1: Resource Network of HUD-approved housing counseling agencies in the State of Texas.

Let's keep our fingers crossed that these two important Texas stations get approved for the grant.

DFW Homeownership Preservation Task Force

This partnership, originally known as Dallas HOPE, has been active in foreclosure prevention since 2004. For the past two years, the group has focused on hosting foreclosure prevention workshops throughout the DFW area, hence the name change. Last year, DFW members proudly report their workshops helped 680 borrowers find solutions on their mortgage problems. That total does not include an additional 460 that task force members welcomed at the HOPE NOW workshop held in June, 2008, in Arlington. Even with that success, the task force is going strong with more workshops planned for 2009 and a new format to host back-to-back workshops, on a Friday afternoon and Saturday morning with each in a different part of the metroplex, has shown impressive results. Hosting the workshops back-to-back also helps the lender/servicers minimize their travel time and expense. The new format is really showing promise. In fact, through the first quarter of 2009, the DFW task force has already assisted 498 households at workshops held in Fort Worth and Dallas. Most recently in March, State Representative Helen Giddings partnered with the task force to host a workshop in the southern sector of Dallas which also covered cities of DeSoto, Duncanville and Lancaster. Nine servicers participated sending out letters of invitation to their delinquent borrowers across the area and some even modified loans on the spot. By the end of the day, 175 households were assisted coming from areas as far away as Keller, Kemp, Prosper and Waxahachie. Representative Giddings involvement was a direct result of the Texas Foreclosure Prevention Task Force presentation to the Texas Legislative Forum on January 29. With the constant changes in the industry, the DFW collaboration is continually adapting to meet the needs of troubled borrowers. For more information, see the DFW task force 2009 calendar on our website at:

Purpose of the Texas Foreclosure Prevention Task Force

The purpose of the Texas Foreclosure Prevention Task Force is to reduce home foreclosures and the impact of foreclosure on Texas families and communities. There are four subcommittees charged with meeting the task force goals:

- Outreach & Education
- Counseling
- Strategy
- Resource Development & Outcomes

Membership is open to any interested organization. Contact: JoAnn DePenning at 512.295.7975 or jdepenning@austin.rr.com

San Antonio Foreclosure Prevention Task Force Update

The City of San Antonio Department of Community Initiatives co-created the San Antonio Foreclosure Prevention Task Force in July 2007 with funding leveraged from the Annie E. Casey Foundation. The coalition brings the City together with nonprofit service providers and financial institutions to prevent foreclosures in their community.

Working in partnership with the Alamo Area Council of Governments (AACOG), Neighborhood Housing Services of San Antonio, and several lenders (Wells Fargo, Bank of America, Countrywide, Jefferson Bank, Citi Bank, and GMAC) the San Antonio Task Force has sponsored 4 foreclosure prevention workshops. In total there have been approximately 600 in attendance. At these events homeowners obtain information that to help them keep their home safe from default and foreclosure. The next workshop will be held on May 2, 2009. For more information about the May 2nd workshop or future workshops, please call (210) 207- 5910.

The San Antonio Task Force has assisted nearly 1200 families since July 2007 and the City has provided financial assistance to approximately 290 families who were subsequently able to avoid foreclosure.

"We want to do everything possible to help homeowners to stay in their homes and get through the economic crisis," said Richard Keith, Special Projects Manager at the City of San Antonio Department of Community Initiatives.

"By working together, the task force members can leverage more resources and information than if we just work individually," said Augustine Sanchez, Program Manager at the City of San Antonio Department of Community Initiatives.

"At the foreclosure prevention events a homeowner in crisis can actually sit down right there with his or her lender and begin talking about a possible restructuring of the mortgage," said Gloria Ray, Vice Chairman of the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs.

"What San Antonio is doing to prevent foreclosures serves as a model for other cities in Texas and elsewhere" said JoAnn DePenning, Co-Chair of the Texas Foreclosure Prevention Task Force.

Kudos to the Dallas Fed for their excellent online Foreclosure Resource Center! <http://dallasfed.org/ca/foreclosure/index.cfm> The webpage includes events, news, resources and research for consumers, financial institutions, community development professionals and neighborhood groups. An excellent Foreclosure Mitigation Toolkit for Communities is also included at the site for municipalities seeking to mitigate foreclosures in their communities. The Toolkit covers everything from assessing the foreclosure situation and reaching troubled homeowners to establishing post-foreclosure support systems and stabilizing neighborhoods. Needless to say, the link to www.texasforeclosurehelp.org is prominently displayed and no doubt directs a lot of traffic to the TFPTF site. Dallas Fed website traffic reports show over 1,000 visits per month to the Foreclosure Resource Center since the page was posted last summer. Thanks for the great work, Dallas Fed!

Foreclosure Rescue Scams

The Federal Reserve has created a 30-second video to warn consumers about Foreclosure Rescue Scams. The video is running in movie theatres in ten markets and directs consumers to the Board's 5-tip series on consumer topics and includes advice such as: work only with a nonprofit HUD-approved counselor, don't work with an organization that charges high up-front fees or guarantees results, know what you are signing, and the age-old adage, "if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is." <http://www.federalreserveeducation.org/pfed/mediakit.cfm>

A recent bill, The Foreclosure Rescue Fraud Protection Act, proposed by Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott and Senator Craig Estes (Wichita Falls) would enhance the AG's enforcement authority, provide new protections for homeowners and place new restrictions on foreclosure prevention consultants. Abbott recommends that Texans who believe they have been contacted or victimized by a fraudulent foreclosure rescue service file a complaint with the OAG at (800) 252-8011 or online at www.texasattorneygeneral.gov

Texas Foreclosure Prevention Task Force Presents to State Legislators on Foreclosure Prevention Resources

On January 29, 2009, members of the Texas Foreclosure Prevention Task Force (TFPTF) Leadership Committee were invited to participate in a presentation to state legislators and their staff members about foreclosure prevention resources. The meeting was hosted by longtime TFPTF participant José Menéndez, Texas State Representative for District 124 in San Antonio. Menéndez said “we have a place of trust with consumers and we can help them avoid scams and opportunists by raising awareness of the many legitimate resources that are available across the state.” He also suggested that Legislators and their staffs contact the local nonprofit housing counselors in their area to establish a relationship and learn about the foreclosure intervention process. When troubled borrowers call, Legislators can then make a “warm hand-off” of that consumer to the counselor. Menéndez added that helping constituents in trouble will “establish a strong bond between that constituent and your office.”

Michael Gerber, Executive Director of the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs (TDHCA), also welcomed the audience with comments about the upcoming Neighborhood Stabilization Program (NSP). Gerber said help from the Federal government is on the way and that once the Department receives approval from HUD, they will issue a Notice of Funding Availability [the Department posted the NSP Notice of Funding Availability on March 27, 2009]. Gerber mentioned land banking as one tool that is included in the NSP guidelines and also mentioned that the Department has data to share upon request by any Legislators that are trying to identify foreclosure problem areas in their communities.

David Long, President of the Texas State Affordable Housing Corporation, the fiduciary agent for the Task Force, announced the eleven partner counseling organizations that have been approved for funding by the TFPTF (see page 1).

JoAnn DePenning, TFPTF Statewide Coordinator, provided some Texas foreclosure statistics to legislators including a map of the state showing foreclosure levels by county. DePenning showed the NeighborWorks and Ad Council Public Service Announcement (PSA) videos and pointed out that several of the networks such as CNN are running the PSAs. DePenning provided a history of the TFPTF formed in 2007 by industry and community stakeholders who were concerned about the mounting foreclosure crisis in Texas. Its mission is to avert home mortgage foreclosures and reduce the impact of foreclosure on Texas families and communities. Originally facilitated and funded by NeighborWorks, the TFPTF now includes over 100 organizations and 150 individuals representing state, local and federal government organizations, the financial industry and the nonprofit sector.

DePenning announced TFPTF accomplishments for its first year in existence:

- Over 8,500 radio/TV spots ran in 16 Texas media markets.
- Series of 6 launch events by TDHCA around the state reached an estimated audience of 4.5 million.
- 25 education/outreach events, workshops, and/or town hall meetings.
- Partnerships with numerous local municipalities to assist with outreach efforts.
- Memorandums of Understanding with 11 organizations (plus 5 in process).
- Development of statewide messaging tools and materials, website, and other resources.

- Raised approx. $1,000,000, including in-kind donations, to support the statewide availability of nonprofit housing counselors.

Also attending the TFPTF Legislative Forum was Jeff Rose from the Texas Attorney General’s Office. Rose provided the Texas AG’s Scam Hotline, 800.621.0508, and explained the importance of awareness of the five red flags or warnings signs of foreclosure scams:

- Guarantees to stop foreclosure.
- Asks you to pay a fee upfront
- Transfer of deed or title for lease-back or repurchase.
- Says no to you making personal contact with your lender, lawyer or housing counselor.
- Fills out paperwork for you.

FUNDING ON THE RISE

Texas receives nearly $500,000 in National Foreclosure Mitigation Counseling (NFMC) Program Funding

In December 2008, the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs (TDHCA), in partnership with the Task Force, received an NFMC award in the amount of $491,490 from NeighborWorks® America to help increase the capacity of foreclosure mitigation counseling agencies that serve struggling homeowners. As the fiscal agent for the Task Force, the Texas State Affordable Housing Corporation will administer these funds to six HUD-approved counseling organizations, which will allow these counseling organizations to increase the number of Texas homeowners that they are able to serve. These organizations include: FrameWorks Community Development Corporation (Austin), North Texas Housing Coalition (Dallas), Credit Coalition (Houston), Gulf Coast Community Services Association (Houston), City of San Antonio Department of Community Initiatives (San Antonio), and Project Bravo (El Paso).

Specifically the funding will be used to reimburse these counseling agencies for the foreclosure intervention services they provide.

The NFMC program also designates that a portion of the funding for program related support such as staff expenses, training, and office supplies, to help these agencies increase their capacity.

TDHCA has also dedicated an additional $98,298 in match funding to support these six counseling agencies. This funding will pay to reimburse counseling agencies for additional counseling sessions program related support, which will allow these agencies to further expand their reach to troubled borrowers in Texas.

Meadows Foundation Awards $250,000 to Support Task Force Initiatives

In March 2009, the Texas State Affordable Housing Corporation, which serves as a participating member and the fiscal agent for the Task Force, was awarded a grant in the amount of $250,000 on behalf of the Task Force.

This new funding will allow the Task Force to continue assisting Texas homeowners and expand our statewide network of service providers. The Task Force currently supports a statewide network of 11 HUD-approved housing counseling agencies offering FREE foreclosure intervention and prevention assistance and this funding will allow us to expand our network to support up to 5 additional local non-profit agencies.

With the funding from the Meadows Foundation, these agencies will be able to provide foreclosure intervention counseling to 2700 homeowners facing foreclosure in Texas. Furthermore, the Task Force will use the grant to continue to provide outreach and education to homeowners in Texas who are facing foreclosure. This grant will allow Task Force partner agencies to expand the marketing of their foreclosure prevention and intervention services using this professionally designed radio, TV, and print, advertising campaign.

The Meadows Foundation is a private philanthropic institution established in 1948 by Algur H. and Virginia Meadows to benefit the people of Texas. The Foundation's mission is to assist the people and institutions of Texas improve the quality and circumstances of life for themselves and future generations. The Foundation looks for programs and services that employ imaginative, innovative ways to solve community problems through projects leading to organizational self-sufficiency and in capital plans that enable agencies to flourish. Connecting With Elected Officials

The term “trusted advisor” has been used in the past to direct potential homeowners to resources that had their best interests at heart. In today’s world, we need to rely heavily on trusted advisors to bring the message of HOPE to homeowners in danger of losing their homes to foreclosure. One of those trusted resources is the elected official, both local and state. City council members, State representatives and senators are receiving calls from constituents asking for help and direction.

The Texas Foreclosure Prevention Task Force was formed as a resource to those who are being affected by the current economic crisis. The Task Force can provide updates on national initiatives, provide homeowner materials that can be used to inform constituents and the introduction to local counseling resources that can intervene and provide direction.

Working together in this way establishes a wider network of information that can reach more homeowners and create a positive outcome for our communities. The Task Force also provides outreach to employers, trade associations and Chambers of Commerce through a Speakers Bureau.

Contact Bonnie Wolferd, Chair of the Leadership Committee of the Texas Foreclosure Prevention Task Force at bonnie@wolferdconsulting.com to discuss ways that the Task Force can help bring foreclosure prevention and intervention information and resources to local government and business leaders in your community.

The Making Home Affordable Program

Recently President Obama announced a comprehensive plan to help responsible homeowners avoid foreclosure by providing affordable and sustainable mortgage loans. The Making Home Affordable Program includes a modification plan targeted at borrowers who are at risk of foreclosure because their incomes are not sufficient to make their mortgage payments. It also includes refinance opportunities for borrowers who are current on their mortgage payments but have been unable to refinance because their homes have decreased in value.

Under the Making Home Affordable Program, Treasury will spend up to $75 billion dollars to make mortgage payments affordable and sustainable for low and middle income American families that are at risk of foreclosure. Borrowers who are delinquent on the mortgage for their primary residence and borrowers who, due to a loss of income or increase in expenses, are current but struggling to make their payments may be eligible for a loan modification.

Detailed program guidance was issued by the Treasury on March 4, 2009. Lenders and mortgage servicers are working hard to train staff and develop systems to implement this program but it will take several weeks before servicers are able to assist every borrower. Patience is key as servicers will likely work first with delinquent borrowers who are at the greatest risk of foreclosure.

Program eligibility is determined by lenders and mortgage servicers so borrowers can be referred to www.hopenow.com to obtain their lender and mortgage servicers contact information. On this same website borrowers may also submit a request for assistance directly to their mortgage company using the new online Assistance Intake Form. However, if at any time in the process of completing the form a borrower needs assistance they can call 888-995-HOPE and speak directly to a counselor.

HUD-approved housing counselors can help a borrower evaluate their income and expenses and understand their options.

This counseling is always FREE. It is important that we spread the message to borrowers that they will never be charged a fee for a modification under the government’s Making Home Affordable Program. Please remind borrowers to beware of any organization that attempts to charge a fee for housing counseling or modification of a delinquent loan, especially if they are asked for money in advance.

Any borrower who would like to speak to a HUD-approved housing counselor can call 888-995-HOPE, 24 hours a day 7 days a week or they can also locate a counseling agency near their home or place of work by using this foreclosure counseling agency lookup site at www.findaforeclosurecounselor.org.

Detailed program information can be found at: www.financialstability.gov.

On March 25th and 26th NeighborWorks® America presented their course titled HO252 - Effective Group and Telephone Foreclosure Counseling Strategies. The training was hosted by Jackie Hoyer, Senior Community Affairs Advisor at the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas, Houston Branch also supportive members of the Texas Foreclosure Prevention Task Force.
